“Emotional Intelligence is the learned ability to think constructively and act wisely”

- Dr. Darwin B Nelson and Dr. Gary R Low

Background:

- ❖ An analysis of more than 300 top-level executives from fifteen global companies showed that six emotional competencies distinguished stars from the average: Influence, Team Leadership, Organizational Awareness, self-confidence, Achievement Drive, and Leadership (Spencer, L. M., Jr., 1997).
- ❖ In jobs of medium complexity (sales clerks, mechanics), a top performer is 12 times more productive than those at the bottom and 85 percent more productive than an average performer. In the most complex jobs (insurance sales people, account managers), a top performer is 127 percent more productive than an average performer (Hunter, Schmidt, & Judiesch, 1990).

The above two researches amongst many others help us to realize the critical connection of Emotional Intelligence to performance and the need to understand, assess and improve Emotional Intelligence.

Objectives of the workshop (Benefits to Participants and Organizations):

1. The purpose of this workshop is to introduce professionals and academicians to Emotional Intelligence and its impact on work and academic performance.
2. Help Understand basics on the Neuroscience of Learning
3. Have Participants as local champions on Emotional Intelligence and have access to the wide and rich network of Professors and Practitioners through Forum for Emotional Intelligence Learning (FEIL) for continued help and support (www.ifeil.org)
4. Design Structures in organizations to create more engaging work environments for improved creativity, productivity and employee satisfaction. This would
